principles during these uncertain times – to protect the safety and health of our employees, to protect the communities in which we live and work, and to maintain business continuity for all of our customers who depend on our products to manage their diabetes.”

Alpuche will accept this honor on behalf of Insulet during a virtual ceremony on November 24.

Insulet has also been named as Manufacturer of the Year by the Massachusetts Manufacturing Caucus. State Senator Jamie Eldridge, who represents the Middlesex and Worcester District, selected Insulet for this honor as part of the Commonwealth's 5th Annual Manufacturers Awards “Re-imagined.”

Senator Eldridge selected Insulet for its commitment to supply chain redundancy and risk mitigation to ensure its customers have access to their Omnipod System supplies during the COVID-19 pandemic. Insulet's Acton-based manufacturing facility was also recognized for its recent installation of approximately 2,800 solar panels at the 58,000-square-foot facility. Senator Eldridge presented the award to Alpuche on October 26.

“We are proud of our global team's resilience and dedication during these last several months. Our employees are incredibly passionate about our work and never lose focus of our mission to improve the lives of people with diabetes,” said Mr. Alpuche. “It's our employees around the world who make this award possible and we're thankful for their contributions to ensure we provide uninterrupted service to our customers.”

About Insulet Corporation:

Insulet Corporation (NASDAQ: PODD), headquartered in Massachusetts, is an innovative medical device company dedicated to simplifying life for people with diabetes and other conditions through its Omnipod product platform. The Omnipod Insulin Management System provides a unique alternative to traditional insulin delivery methods. With its simple, wearable design, the disposable Pod provides up to three days of non-stop insulin delivery, without the need to see or handle a needle.
